Forecast for Tuesday 09 May 2023

Weather: Any overnight showers will die out but mist and fog will linger and be slow to clear after dawn. The morning will brighten up with some bright or sunny spells for most ranges, perhaps remaining cloud for more eastern hills around Ben Wyvis. Frequent showers will develop, these will be quite short lived but they may group together with cloud gathering too. Showers dying out in the evening with some clear spells developing. Feeling quite warm in any sunny spells in the milder air.

Chance of cloud-free hill tops above 800m: 70% improving to 90%, perhaps patchy low cloud in showers

Low cloud and visibility: Early low cloud with scattered amounts above 500m, this will lift and clear gradually after dawn, with cloud free summits expected for much of the day, perhaps patchy cloud falling below the higher Torridon tops in afternoon showers briefly. Visibility may be poor in place in mist early in the day and very poor in any early fog patches but expected to improve at all levels in the morning becoming mainly very good with views all around, dipping temporarily in any sharp showers.
